Mr. Speaker : I am directed to hand you a communication, in writing, from the President to the two Houses of Congress. And he delivered in the same, and then withdrew.

The said communication was read, and is as followeth :

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States :

To a People, fellow-citizens, who sincerely desire the happiness and prosperity of other nations, to those who justly calculate that their own well-being is advanced by that of the nations with which they have intercourse, it will be a satisfaction to observe that the war which was lighted up in Europe a little before our last meeting, has not yet extended its flames to other nations, nor been marked by the calamities which sometimes stain the footsteps of war. The irregularities, too, on the ocean, which generally harass the commerce of neutral nations, have, in distant parts, disturbed ours less than on former occasions. But, in the American seas, they have been greater, from peculiar causes ; and, even within our harbors and jurisdiction, infringements on the authority of the laws have been committed, which have called for serious attention. The friendly conduct of the Governments from whose officers and subjects these acts have proceeded, in other respects, and in places more under their observation and control, gives us confidence that our representations on this subject will have been properly regarded.

While noticing the irregularities committed on the ocean by others, those on our own part should not be omitted, nor left unprovided for. Complaints have been received, that persons, residing within the United States, have taken on themselves to arm merchant vessels, and to force a commerce into certain ports and countries, in defiance of the laws of those countries. That individuals should undertake to wage private war, independently of the authority of their country, cannot be permitted in a well ordered society. Its tendency to produce aggression on the laws and rights of other nations, and to endanger the peace of our own, is so obvious, that I doubt not you will adopt measures for restraining it effectually in future.

Soon after the passage of the act of the last session, authorizing the establishment of a district and port of entry on the waters of the Mobile, we learnt that its object was misunderstood on the part of Spain. Candid explanations were immediately given, and assurances that, reserving our claims in that quarter as a subject of discussion and arrangement with Spain, no act was meditated, in the mean time, inconsistent with the peace and friendship existing between the two nations : and that, conformably to these intentions would be the execution of the law. That Government had, however, thought proper to suspend the ratification of the Convention of 1802. But the explanations which would reach them soon after, and still more the confirmation of them by the tenor of the instrument establishing the port and district, may reasonably be expected to replace them in the dispositions and views of the whole subject which originally dictated the convention.

I have the satisfaction to inform you, that the objections which had been urged by that Government against the validity of our title to the country of Louisiana, have been withdrawn : its exact limits, however, remaining still to be settled between us. And to this is to be added, that, having prepared and delivered the stock created in execution of the Convention of Paris of April 30th, 1803, in consideration of the cession of that country, we have received from the Government of France an acknowledgment, in due form, of the fulfilment of that stipulation.

With the nations of Europe, in general, our friendship and intercourse are undisturbed : and, from the Governments of the belligerent Powers, especially, we continue to receive those friendly manifestations which are justly due to an honest neutrality, and to such good offices, consistent with that, as we have opportunities of rendering.

The activity and success of the small force employed in the Mediterranean in the early part of the present year, the reinforcement sent into that sea, and the energy of the officers having command in the several vessels, will, I trust, by the sufferings of war, reduce the barbarians of Tripoli to the desire of peace on proper terms. Great injury, however, ensues to ourselves as well as to others interested, from the distance to which prizes must be brought for adjudication, and from the impracticability of bringing hither such as are not seaworthy.

The Bey of Tunis having made requisitions unauthorized by our treaty, their rejection has produced from him some expressions of discontent. But to those who expect us to calculate whether a compliance with unjust demands will not cost us less than a war, we must leave as a question of calculation for them also, whether to retire from unjust demands will not cost them less than a war. We can do to each other very sensible injuries by war. But the mutual advantages of peace make that the best interest of both.

Peace and intercourse with the other Powers on the same coast, continue on the footing on which they are established by treaty.

In pursuance of the act providing for the temporary Government of Louisiana, the necessary officers for the Territory of Orleans were appointed in due time to commence the exercise of their functions on the first day of October. The distance, however, of some of them, and indispensable previous arrangements may have retarded its commencement in some of its parts. The form of Government thus provided, having been considered but as temporary, and open to such future improvements as further information of the circumstances of our brethren there might suggest, it will, of course, be subject to your consideration.

In the District of Louisiana, it has been thought best to adopt the division into subordinate districts which had been established under its former Government. These being five in number, a commanding officer has been appointed to each, according to the provisions of the law, and so soon as they can be at their stations, that district will also be in its due state of organization. In the mean time, their places are supplied by the officers before commanding there, and the functions of the Governor and Judges of Indiana having commenced, the Government, we presume, is proceeding in its new form. The lead mines in that district offer so rich a supply of that metal as to merit attention. The report now communicated will inform you of their state, and of the necessity of immediate inquiry into their occupation and titles.

With the Indian tribes established within our newly acquired limits, I have deemed it necessary to open conferences for the purpose of establishing a good understanding, and neighborly relations between us. So far as we have yet learned, we have reason to believe that their dispositions are generally favorable and friendly. And, with these dispositions on their part, we have in our own hands means which cannot fail us, for preserving their peace and friendship. By pursuing an uniform course of justice towards them, by aiding them in all the improvements which may better their condition, and especially by establishing a commerce on terms which shall be advantageous to them, and only not losing to us, and so regulate as that no incendiaries, of our own or any other nation, may be permitted to disturb the natural effects of our just and friendly offices, we may render ourselves so necessary to their comfort and prosperity, that the protection of our citizens from their disorderly members, will become their interest and their voluntary care. Instead, therefore, of an augmentation of military force, proportioned to our extension of frontier, I propose a moderate enlargement of the capital employed in that commerce, as a more effectual, economical, and humane instrument for preserving peace and good neighborhood with them.

On this side the Mississippi an important relinquishment of native title has been received from the Delawares. That tribe, desiring to extinguish in their People the spirit of hunting, and to convert superfluous lands into the means of improving what they retain, has ceded to us all the country between the Wabash and Ohio, South of, and including, the road from the rapids towards Vincennes : for which they are to receive annuities in animals and implements for agriculture, and in other necessities. This acquisition is important, not only for its extent and fertility, but as, fronting three hundred miles on the Ohio, and near half that on the Wabash, the produce of the settled country descending those rivers will no longer pass in review of the Indian frontier, but in a small portion ; and, with the cession heretofore made by the Kaskaskias, nearly consolidates our possessions North of the Ohio, in a very respectable breadth, from Lake Erie to the Mississippi. The Piankeshaws having some claim to the country ceded by the Delawares, it has been thought best to quiet that by fair purchase also. So soon as the treaties on this subject shall have received their constitutional sanctions, they shall be laid before both Houses.

The act of Congress, of February 28, 1803, for building and employing a number of gun boats, is now in a course of execution to the extent there provided for. The obstacle to naval enterprise which vessels of this construction offer for our seaport towns, their utility towards supporting within our waters the authority of the laws, the promptness with which they will be manned by the seamen and militia of the place in the moment they are wanting, the facility of their assembling from different parts of the coast to any point where they are required in greater force than ordinary, the economy of their maintenance and preservation from decay, when not in actual service, and the competence of our finances to this defensive provision, without any new burthen, are considerations which will have due weight with Congress in deciding on the expediency of adding to their number, from year to year, as experience shall test their utility, until all our important harbors, by these and auxiliary means, shall be secured against insult and opposition to the laws.

No circumstance has arisen since your last session, which calls for any augmentation of our regular military force. Should any improvement occur in the militia system, that will be always seasonable.

Accounts of the receipts and expenditures of the last year, with estimates for the ensuing one, will, as usual, be laid before you.

The state of our finances continues to fulfil our expectations. Eleven millions and an half of dollars, received in the course of the year ending on the thirtieth of September last, have enabled us, after meeting all the ordinary expenses of the year, to pay upwards of three millions six hundred thousand dollars of the public debt, exclusive of interest. This payment, with those of the two preceding years, has extinguished upwards of twelve millions of principal, and a greater sum of interest, within that period ; and, by a proportionate diminution of interest, renders already sensible the effect of the growing sum yearly applicable to the discharge of principal.

It is also ascertained that the revenue accrued during the last year, exceeds that of the preceding ; and the probable receipts of the ensuing year may safely be relied on as sufficient, with the sum already in the Treasury, to meet all the current demands of the year, to discharge upwards of three millions and an half of the engagements incurred under the British and French conventions, and to advance in the further redemption of the funded debt as rapidly as had been contemplated.

These, fellow-citizens, are the principal matters which I have thought it necessary, at this time, to communicate for your consideration and attention. Some others will be laid before you in the course of the session. But, in the discharge of the great duties confided to you by our country, you will take a broader view of the field of legislation. Whether the great interests of agriculture, manufactures, commerce, or navigation, can, within the pale of your constitutional powers, be aided in any of their relations? Whether laws are provided in all cases where they are wanting? Whether those provided are exactly what they should be? Whether any abuses take place in their administration or in that of the public revenues? Whether the organization of the public agents or of the public force, is perfect in all its parts? In fine, whether any thing can be done to advance the general good?—are questions within the limits of your functions, which will necessarily occupy your attention. In these and all other matters, which you, in your wisdom, may propose for the good of our country, you may count with assurance on my hearty co-operation and faithful execution.

TH. JEFFERSON.

Mr. Rodney, from the committee last mentioned, presented, according to order, a bill establishing a Court for the adjudication of prizes in certain cases; which was received, and read the first time.

On motion,

The said bill was read the second time, and ordered to be committed to a Committee of the Whole House to-morrow.

The House, according to the order of the day, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House on the report of the committee of the thirtieth ultimo, to whom was referred the report of a select committee appointed on the thirteenth of March last, "to prepare and report articles of impeachment against Samuel Chase, one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States;" and, after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Varnum reported that the committee had, according to order, had the said report under consideration, and directed him to report their agreement to the articles of impeachment contained therein, with two amendments; which he delivered in at the Clerk's table.

The House proceeded to consider the said report : When,

An adjournment being called for,

The several orders of the day were farther postponed until to-morrow.

And the House adjourned until to-morrow morning eleven o'clock.

Mr. Matthew Clay, from the committee to whom was recommitted, on the twenty-second ultimo, the bill giving power to the stockholders of the Marine Insurance Company of Alexandria to insure against fire, reported an amendatory bill; which was received, and read the first time.

On motion,

The said bill was read the second time, and ordered to be committed to a Committee of the Whole House to-morrow.

The House resumed the consideration of the report of the committee, made the thirtieth ultimo, to whom was referred the report of a select committee, appointed on the thirteenth of March last, "to prepare and report articles of impeachment against Samuel Chase, one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States;" and the amendments yesterday reported thereto from the Committee of the Whole House, being twice read, were, on the question severally put thereupon, disagreed to by the House.

The articles of impeachment contained in the said report, as originally proposed by the select committee, being read at the Clerk's table, in the words following, to wit:

Articles exhibited by the House of Representatives of the United States, in the name of themselves and of all the People of the United States, against Samuel Chase, one of the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, in maintenance and support of their impeachment against him, for high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE I. That, unmindful of the solemn duties of his office, and contrary to the sacred obligation by which he stood bound to discharge them "faithfully and impartially, and without respect to persons," the said Samuel Chase, on the trial of John Fries, charged with treason before the Circuit Court of the United States, held for the district of Pennsylvania, in the city of Philadelphia, during the months of April and May, one thousand eight hundred, whereat the said Samuel Chase presided, did, in his judicial capacity, conduct himself in a manner highly arbitrary, oppressive, and unjust, viz.

1. In delivering an opinion, in writing, on the question of law, on the construction of which the defence of the accused materially depended, tending to prejudice the minds of the jury against the case of the said John Fries, the prisoner, before counsel had been heard in his defence.

2. In restricting the counsel for the said Fries from recurring to such English authorities as they believed apposite, or from citing certain statutes of the United States, which they deemed illustrative of the positions upon which they intended to rest the defence of their client.

3. In debarring the prisoner from his constitutional privilege of addressing the jury (through his counsel) on the law, as well as on the fact, which was to determine his guilt or innocence, and at the same time endeavoring to wrest from the jury their indisputable right to hear argument and determine upon the question of law, as well as the question of fact, involved in the verdict which they were required to give :

In consequence of which irregular conduct of the said Samuel Chase, as dangerous to our liberties as it is novel to our laws and usages, the said John Fries was deprived of the right secured to him by the eighth article amendatory of the Constitution, and was condemned to death, without having been heard by counsel in his defence, to the disgrace of the character of the American bench, in manifest violation of law and justice, and in open contempt of the rights of juries, on which ultimately rest the liberty and safety of the American People.

ARTICLE II. That, prompted by a similar spirit of persecution and injustice, at a Circuit Court of the United States, held at Richmond, in the month of May, one thousand eight hundred, for the district of Virginia, whereat the said Samuel Chase presided, and before which a certain James Thompson Callendar was arraigned for a libel on John Adams, then President of the United States, the said Samuel Chase, with intent to oppress and procure the conviction of the said Callendar, did overrule the objection of John Basset, one of the jury, who wished to be excused from serving on the said trial, because he had made up his mind as to the publication from which the words, charged to be libellous in the indictment, were extracted ; and the said Basset was accordingly sworn, and did serve on the said jury, by whose verdict the prisoner was subsequently convicted.

ARTICLE III. That, with intent to oppress and procure the conviction of the prisoner, the evidence of John Taylor, a material witness on behalf of the aforesaid Callendar, was not permitted by the said Samuel Chase to be given in, on pretence that the said witness could not prove the truth of the whole of one of the charges contained in the indictment, although the said charge embraced more than one fact.

ARTICLE IV.—That the conduct of the said Samuel Chase was marked, during the whole course of the said trial, by manifest injustice, partiality and intemperance, viz.

1. In compelling the prisoner's counsel to reduce to writing, and submit to the inspection of the Court, for their admission or rejection, all questions which the said counsel meant to propound to the above named John Taylor, the witness.

2. In refusing to postpone the trial, although an affidavit was regularly filed, stating the absence of material witnesses on behalf of the accused ; and although it was manifest that, with the utmost diligence, the attendance of such witnesses could not have been procured at that term.

3. In the use of unusual, rude, and contemptuous expressions towards the prisoner's counsel ; and in falsely insinuating that they wished to excite the public fears and indignation, and to produce that insubordination to law, to which the conduct of the Judge did, at the same time, manifestly tend.

4. In repeated and vexatious interruptions of the said counsel, on the part of the said Judge, which at length induced them to abandon their cause and their client, who was thereupon convicted and condemned to fine and imprisonment.

5. In an indecent solicitude manifested by the said Samuel Chase for the conviction of the accused, unbecoming even a public prosecutor, but highly disgraceful to the character of a Judge as it was subversive of justice.

ARTICLE V. And whereas it is provided by the act of Congress, passed on the twenty-fourth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine, entitled "An act to establish the judicial courts of the United States," that for any crime or offence against the United States, the offender may be arrested, imprisoned, or bailed, agreeably to the usual mode of process in the State where such offender may be found : and whereas it is provided by the laws of Virginia, that, upon presentment by any Grand Jury of an offence not capital, the Court shall order the Clerk to issue a summons against the person or persons offending, to appear and answer such presentment at the next Court ; yet the said Samuel Chase did, at the Court aforesaid, award a capias against the body of the said James Thompson Callendar, indicted for an offence not capital, whereupon the said Callendar was arrested and committed to close custody, contrary to law in that case made and provided.

ARTICLE VI. And whereas it is provided, by the thirty-fourth section of the aforesaid act, entitled "An act to establish the judicial courts of the United States," that the laws of the several States, except where the Constitution, Treaties, or Statutes, of the United States shall otherwise require, or provide, shall be regarded as the rules of decision in trials at common law, in the courts of the United States, in cases where they apply; and whereas, by the laws of Virginia, it is provided, that, in cases not capital, the offender shall not be held to answer any presentment of a Grand Jury until the court next succeeding that during which such presentment shall have been made, yet the said Samuel Chase, with intent to oppress and procure the conviction of the said James Thompson Callendar, did, at the court aforesaid, rule and adjudge the said Callendar to trial, during the term at which he, the said Callendar, was presented and indicted, contrary to law in that case made and provided.

ARTICLE VII. That, at a Circuit Court of the United States, for the District of Delaware, held at New Castle, in the month of June, one thousand eight hundred, whereat the said Samuel Chase presided, the said Samuel Chase, disregarding the duties of his office, did descend from the dignity of a judge and stoop to the level of an informer, by refusing to discharge the Grand Jury, although entreated by several of the said jury so to do; and, after the said Grand Jury had regularly declared, through their foreman, that they had found no bills of indictment, nor had any presentments to make, by observing to the said Grand Jury, that he, the said Samuel Chase, understood, "that a highly seditious temper had manifested itself in the State of Delaware, among a certain class of People, particularly in New Castle county, and more especially in the town of Wilmington, where lived a most seditious printer, unrestrained by any principle of virtue, and regardless of social order; that the name of this printer was—" but, checking himself, as if sensible of the indecorum which he was committing, added—"that it might be assuming too much to mention the name of this person, but it becomes your duty, gentlemen, to inquire diligently into this matter," or words to that effect: and that, with intention to procure the prosecution of the printer in question, the said Samuel Chase did, moreover, unauthoritatively enjoin on the District Attorney of the United States the necessity of procuring a file of the papers to which he alluded, (and which were understood to be those published under the title of "Mirror of the Times and General Advertiser,") and, by a strict examination of them, to find some passage which might furnish the ground work of a prosecution against the printer of the said paper: thereby degrading his high judicial functions, and tending to impair the public confidence in, and respect for, the tribunals of justice, so essential to the general welfare.

ARTICLE VIII. And whereas mutual respect and confidence between the Government of the United States and those of the individual States, and between the People and those Governments, respectively, are highly conducive to that public harmony without which there can be no public happiness, yet the said Samuel Chase, disregarding the duties and dignity of his judicial character, did, at the Circuit Court, for the District of Maryland, held at Baltimore, in the month of May, one thousand eight hundred and three, pervert his official right and duty to address the Grand Jury then and there assembled, on the matters coming within the province of the said jury, for the purpose of delivering to the said Grand Jury an intemperate and inflammatory political harangue, with intent to excite the fears and resentment of the said Grand Jury, and of the good People of Maryland against their State Government and Constitution, a conduct highly censurable in any, but peculiarly indecent and unbecoming in a Judge of the Supreme Court of the United States: and, moreover, that the said Samuel Chase, then and there, under pretence of exercising his judicial right to address the said Grand Jury, as aforesaid, did, in a manner highly unwarrantable, endeavor to excite the odium of the said Grand Jury, and of the good People of Maryland, against the Government of the United States, by delivering opinions, which, even if the judicial authority were competent to their expression, on a suitable occasion and in a proper manner, were, at that time, and as delivered by him, highly indecent, extra-judicial, and tending to prostitute the high judicial character with which he was invested, to the low purpose of an electioneering partizan.

And the House of Representatives, by protestation, saving to themselves the liberty of exhibiting, at any time hereafter, any further articles, or other accusation, or impeachment, against the said Samuel Chase, and also of replying to his answers which he shall make unto the said articles, or any of them, and of offering proof to all and every the aforesaid articles, and to all and every other articles, impeachment, or accusation, which shall be exhibited by them, as the case shall require, do demand that the said Samuel Chase may be put to answer the said crimes and misdemeanors, and that such proceedings, examinations, trials, and judgments, may be thereupon had and given, as are agreeable to law and justice.

It was resolved in the affirmative, { Yeas 82,
{ Nays 34.

The eighth and last of the said articles of impeachment being again read at the Clerk's table,

A division of the question, on the same, was called for,

And on the question, that the House do agree to the first member of the said eighth article, in the words following, to wit :

"ARTICLE VIII. And whereas mutual respect and confidence between the Government of the United States and those of the individual States, and between the People and those Governments, respectively, are highly conducive to that public harmony, without which there can be no public happiness, yet the said Samuel Chase, disregarding the duties and dignity of his judicial character, did, at a Circuit Court, for the District of Maryland, held at Baltimore, in the month of May, one thousand eight hundred and three, pervert his official right and duty to address the grand jury then and there assembled, on the matters coming within the province of the said jury, for the purpose of delivering to the said grand jury, an intemperate and inflammatory political harangue, with intent to excite the fears and resentment of the said grand jury, and of the good People of Maryland against their State Government and Constitution, a conduct highly censurable in any, but peculiarly indecent and unbecoming in a judge of the Supreme Court of the United States : and, moreover, that the said Samuel Chase, then, and there, under pretence of exercising his judicial right to address the said grand jury, as aforesaid, did, in a manner highly unwarrantable, endeavor to excite the odium of the said grand jury, and of the good People of Maryland, against the Government of the United States, by delivering opinions, which, even if the judicial authority were competent to their expression, on a suitable occasion and in a proper manner, were at that time, and as delivered by him, highly indecent, extra-judicial, and tending to prostitute the high judicial character with which he was invested, to the low purpose of an electioneering partizan."

And then the main question being taken that the House do concur with the select committee in their agreement to the said articles of impeachment, as originally proposed, and hereinbefore recited,

It was resolved in the affirmative.

On a motion made and seconded that the House do come to the following resolution :

Resolved, That ——— managers be appointed, by ballot, to conduct the said impeachment on the part of this House.

The House proceeded to take the said motion into consideration : When,

An adjournment being called for,

The several orders of the day were farther postponed until to-morrow.

And the House adjourned until to-morrow morning eleven o'clock.

Mr. Thomas M. Randolph, from the Joint Committee for Enrolled Bills, reported that the committee had examined an enrolled bill, entitled "An act making an appropriation for the supply of a deficiency in an appropriation for the support of Government during the present year, and making a partial appropriation for the same object during the year one thousand eight hundred and five," and had found the same to be truly enrolled : Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker signed the said enrolled bill.

Ordered, That the Clerk of this House do acquaint the Senate therewith.

On motion,

Resolved, That the Committee of Commerce and Manufactures be directed to inquire whether any, and, if any, what, further provision is necessary to be made, by law, for carrying into effect the tenth article of the treaty of friendship, limits, and navigation, with Spain, so far as relates to exemptions from duties, charges, and fees, arising upon the whole or any part of the cargo of such Spanish vessels as may be wrecked, foundered, or otherwise damaged, on the coasts, or within the limits of the United States, where, from the insufficiency of the vessel, it becomes necessary to export or relade the same upon other bottoms ; and that the committee have power to report by bill, or otherwise.

The House resumed the consideration of the motion, depending yesterday at the time of adjournment, "for the appointment of ——— managers to conduct the impeachment of Samuel Chase, on the part of this House : " Whereupon,

Mr. John Randolph,

Mr. Rodney,

Mr. Nicholson,

Mr. Early,

Mr. Boyle, and

Mr. Nelson,

The House proceeded to a second ballot for another manager, when the ballots being examined, it appeared that no member had a majority of the votes of the whole House, but that the highest number of votes was given in favor of Mr. George Washington Campbell : Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker decided that it being provided, by a standing rule and order of the House, that, in case of any second ballot of the House, in which the number required to compose a committee shall not be elected by a majority of the votes given on the said second ballot, a plurality of votes shall prevail, and therefore that, in his opinion, the said George Washington Campbell was duly elected as the seventh manager to conduct the impeachment against the said Samuel Chase.

From which decision, an appeal was made to the House by two members,

And on the question, "Is the said decision of the chair in order ?"

It passed in the negative.

The House then proceeded to a further ballot for the said seventh manager, and, upon examining the ballots, Mr. George Washington Campbell appeared to be duly elected by a majority of the votes of the whole House.

On motion,

Resolved, That the articles agreed to by this House, to be exhibited in the name of themselves and of all the People of the United States, against Samuel Chase, in maintenance of their impeachment against him for high crimes and misdemeanors, be carried to the Senate by the managers appointed to conduct the said impeachment.

"That William Hoge, member of the House of Representatives for the eighth Congress, having, by letter to the Governor of the State of Pennsylvania, dated the fifteenth of October, resigned his seat in Congress, the Governor, in pursuance of the provisions made in the second section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, issued a writ of election, to supply the vacancy which had thus taken place ; that the said writ was issued on the twenty-second day of October, and the election directed to be held on the second day of November, eleven days after the date of the said writ ; that the writ was brought by the mail to the prothonotary's office, in Washington, on the thirtieth of October, but not proclaimed by the sheriff till the thirty-first.

"It appears to the committee that, though by the second section of the first article of the Constitution of the United States, it is made the duty of the Executive authority of the respective States to issue writs of election to fill vacancies, yet, by the fourth section of the aforesaid article, it is made the duty of the Legislature of each State to prescribe the times, places, and manner for holding such elections. It appears, however, that several elections to supply vacancies in Congress have been heretofore held in Pennsylvania, yet, on examining the laws of that State, it appears that no law exists prescribing the times, places, and manner of holding elections to supply such

“ By the law for the general election of Representatives to Congress, for Pennsylvania, the sheriff is to give thirty days’ notice before the election, and to make the returns within thirty days after it. This election is held near five months before the expiration of the existing Congress. By the law of said State for supplying vacancies in the State Legislature, the Speakers of the respective Houses shall issue writs to supply vacancies that may happen, giving at least ten days’ notice. The Governor, in the case now before the committee, has directed the election to be held on the same day, &c. on which the Electors for President and Vice President were to be chosen. There is no proof before the committee of any abuse in the manner of conducting the election, in obedience to the writ issued by the Governor.

It was, on a motion made and seconded,

Ordered, That the further consideration of the said resolution be postponed until Monday next.

Another message, in writing, was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Coles, his Secretary, as followeth :

To the House of Representatives of the United States :

For some weeks past, I have had reason to expect, by every mail from New Orleans, information which would have fully met the views of the House of Representatives, expressed in their resolution of December thirty-first, on the subject of a post road from the city of Washington to New Orleans ; but this being not yet received, I think it my duty, without further delay, to communicate to the House the information I possess, however imperfect.

Isaac Briggs, one of the surveyors general of the United States, being about to return, in July last, to his station at Natchez, and apprized of the anxiety existing to have a practicable road explored for forwarding the mail to New Orleans, without crossing the mountains, offered his services, voluntarily, to return by the route contemplated, taking, as he should go, such observations of longitude and latitude as would enable him to delineate it exactly, and, by protraction, to show of what shortenings it would admit. The offer was accepted, and he was furnished with an accurate sextant for his observations. The route proposed was from Washington by Fredericksburgh, Cartersville, Lower Sauratown, Salisbury, Franklin Court House, in Georgia, Tuckabachee, Fort Stoddert, and the mouth of Pearl River, to New Orleans. It is believed he followed this route generally, deviating at times only, for special purposes, and returning again into it. His letters, herewith communicated, will shew his opinion to have been, after completing his journey, that the practicable distance between Washington and New Orleans will be a little over one thousand miles. He expected to forward his map and special report, within one week from the date of his last letter ; but a letter of December tenth, from another person, informs me he had been unwell, but would forward them within a week from that time. So soon as they shall be received, they shall be communicated to the House of Representatives.

TH. JEFFERSON.

FEBRUARY 1st, 1805.

The said message was read, and ordered to be referred to the Committee of the Whole House to whom was committed, on the seventh of December last, a motion respecting "the establishment of a post road from Knoxville, in the State of Tennessee, to the settlements on the Tombigby river, in the Mississippi Territory, and from thence to New Orleans ; also for the establishment of a post road from ———, in Georgia, to the said settlement, on the Tombigby, to intersect the former road, at the most convenient point between Knoxville and the Tombigby."

A petition of the People called Quakers, inhabitants of the State of Ohio, and parts adjacent, signed by order and in behalf of the society of the said People called Quakers, by Horton Howard and Nathan Updegraff, was presented to the House and read, praying a right in fee simple, at the usual price and credit, in the purchase of certain sections of land therein specified, or such other sections, in the ranges of townships within the said State, as Congress, in their wisdom, shall deem reasonable and proper, to be appropriated by the petitioners to promote the laudable purpose of instructing the youth of the society aforesaid, as well as those who may be interested therein, in the progress of useful literature, and of piety and virtue.

Ordered, That the said petition be referred to the committee appointed, the seventh ultimo, "to inquire whether any, and, if any, what, alterations are necessary in the laws providing for the sale of the public lands Northwest of the Ohio;" that they do examine the matter thereof, and report the same, with their opinion thereupon, to the House.

The House resumed the consideration of the resolution reported from the Committee of the Whole House on the report of the Committee of Claims, to whom were referred, during the present session, the representation and memorials of sundry citizens of Massachusetts, purchasers under the Georgia Company; of the agents for persons composing the New England Land Company, purchasers under the Georgia Mississippi Company; and of the agent for sundry citizens of South Carolina, purchasers under the Upper Mississippi Company; and made a farther progress therein.

Mr. Speaker: The Senate have passed the bill, entitled "An act in addition to 'An act to make provision for persons that have been disabled by known wounds received in the actual service of the United States, during the Revolutionary war;' to which they desire the concurrence of this House. And then he withdrew.

The House resumed the consideration of the resolution reported on the twenty-ninth ultimo, from the Committee of the Whole House, on the report of the Committee of Claims, to whom were referred, during the present session, the representation and memorial of sundry citizens of Massachusetts, purchasers under the Georgia Company; of the agents for persons composing the New England Land Company, purchasers under the Georgia Mississippi Company; and of the agent for sundry citizens of South Carolina, purchasers under the Upper Mississippi Company; and the said resolution being twice read at the Clerk's table, in the words following, to wit:

Resolved, That three commissioners be authorized to receive propositions of compromise and settlement, from the several companies or persons, having claims to public lands within the present limits of the Mississippi Territory, and finally to adjust and settle the same, in such manner as, in their opinion, will conduce to the interest of the United States : Provided, That in such settlement the commissioners shall not exceed the limits prescribed by the Convention with the State of Georgia :

A motion was made and seconded to amend the said resolution, by striking out therefrom, the word "finally," next before the words "to adjust and settle the same :"

On the question that the House do agree to the said amendment,

It passed in the negative.

And then the main question being taken that the House do concur with the Committee of the Whole House in their agreement to the resolution, as herein before recited,

It was resolved in the affirmative,
